

TURIN- TEATRO REGIO SEASON 2017-2018

History:

Inaugurated on 26 December 1740, the Regio of Turin, which owes its name back to the former Italian royal family Savoia, got immediately an international reference point because of its capacity (about 2500 seats), the magnificent decorations in the auditorium with an impressive painted vault as well as the quality of the performances.

In 1855 the Regio opened up to the opera buffa with Rossini's Barbiere di Siviglia, Giacomo Puccini christened there both Manon Lescaut (1893) and La bohème (1896), while under the direction of Arturo Toscanini in 1905 the renovation of the theatre was celebrated with Wagner's Siegfried.

During the night of 8 and 9 February 1936 the Teatro was destroyed by a violent fire and wasn't rebuilt until 1973, with a reopening directed by Maria Callas and Giuseppe di Stefano in Giuseppe Verdi's Vespri Siciliani.

Since that date productive activity has been progressively increasing.
